The BMBF-funded research project “Zur Materialität von Flucht und Migration” (headed by Prof. Andrea Lauser) is looking for a

Graduate Research Assistant

on a work basis of 30-40 hrs/month to start with immediate effect till September 30, 2019 [extension possible]

Main Tasks:
- translate articles/contributions for the interactive project website
- process photo, audio and video data for online publication

Required Qualifications:
- Fluency in both English and German (preferably English native speaker)
- Advanced BA student or higher in Social Sciences (preferably in Social and Cultural Anthropology)
- Experience in image processing and in using related software, e.g. Photoshop and content management systems
- Willingness to work as part of a dynamic team

Please send your application (letter of motivation, CV, relevant certificates, copy of proof of enrollment at the University of Göttingen) by March 31, 2019 to matmig@sowi.uni-goettingen.de.

About the project:
The BMBF-funded research project “Zur Materialität von Flucht und Migration”, led by the Department of Social and Cultural Anthropology, is a collaboration between the University of Göttingen, Museum Friedland and “die Exponauten” and aims to study the material dimension of (forced) migration mainly in the Friedland refugee camp as well as the losses, negotiations, and hopes and expectations related to material objects. The project team will be working closely with the refugee camp (GDL) at Friedland.

Further information about the project can be found on our website: www.uni-goettingen.de/de/593397.html and by contacting the project coordinator:

Friedemann Neumann and Serena Müller (matmig@sowi.uni-goettingen.de, 0551-3927869).